

MARRIAGE STRIKE IS EXPLAINED BY
"OKLAHOMA KATE"

It Is to Prevent Filling the Maw of Machinery
With Children.

WORK FOR THOSE HERE.

"We Women Have to Fight Influences," Declares Miss Kate Barnard.

"Every woman had real strength of mind and a real knowledge of the evil around her, she would fairly refuse to marry until conditions were changed. She would say to the man come courting, 'Feed the hungry children in the world. Give their fathers a living wage. Give their mothers homes where they may rest and grow strong. Don't come talking to me of love until you have done that.' Some day women will say these words, if men continue to coin idle gold the blood of children."

Her big gray eyes glowing, her slight figure trembling with the earnestness of her conviction, Miss Kate Barnard unflinchingly repeated the prophecy of a marriage strike with which she so disturbed an audience of several hundred working girls recently. Miss Barnard's other name is "Oklahoma Kate," and she is the woman who has twice led the Democratic ticket to victory in Oklahoma for the office of State Commissioner of Charities and Corrections.

She is particularly well known for her work in prison reform, and to-morrow she will speak at the Berkeley Theatre for her newest project, the "Hull House of the Southwest."

HARBOR OF REFUGE FOR DISCHARGED PRISONERS.

Twenty miles outside Oklahoma City she has bought a big tract of land which she intends to make a social center for all the surrounding country. It will also offer employment to men discharged from prison. These men will have a chance to learn agriculture, dairy farming or poultry raising, so that later on they may buy land for themselves and escape the heart-rending struggle for honest work which confronts the freed prisoner.

"But do you believe that women should deliberately put aside domestic life in order to force through the social reforms in which you're interested?" she was asked.

"I know that," she insisted. "It is the women who can do things in America, if they will. What- ever faults our men have, they are mighty good to their women folks. But women must stop asking for selfish, personal favors. Instead of pleading for new slips, they must plead that every little child in their city may wear warm shoes. And if fair arguments fail, a Tolstoyan policy of passive resistance will certainly succeed."

"Since I have been in New York, several girls, all daughters of rich men, have come to me frankly and asked me how to begin to make their lives count for something. This is the advice I gave them. I said, 'Go over to your own east side, each one of you, and find one utterly poor and destitute family. Make a solemn vow to take care of that family for a year. Get jobs for the persons who can make use of them. Give money and delicacies if any one is ill. Send mother and baby into the country for a breathing spell during the hot weather. See that the children have clothes suitable for school.'"

"And then I added, 'Tell your father what you are going to do and ask him to accompany you on your visits to your family. He may laugh at you. He will almost surely refuse to go with you the first few times you ask him, but don't give up. If you can get him to see with his own eyes how those people live, you will almost certainly wake him to his own duty in the matter. And then he will be another recruit in the ranks of those who are working for the conservation of humanity.'"

"If only the fathers of some of the girls I have met would wake up!" sighed Oklahoma Kate. "Oh, no, I mustn't tell you who they are, because they are as unawakened as they are rich, and it wouldn't be kind to mention their names. But I believe that the daughter or wife or sweetheart of the most grasping millionaire can convert him! GIRLS ADVISED TO BEGIN THE GOOD WORK EARLY."

"A girl can't begin too young. She mustn't listen to the man who will try to tell her that she is a child and should not make herself unhappy about what doesn't concern her. The unhappiness of one woman or child in America ought to be the intimate concern of every woman."

"It is the mother love which is the lever of Archimedes, on which the world may turn. What saves the individual child will sooner or later save the race."

"You are, then, hopeful about women?"

"Oh, but indeed I am!" exclaimed Oklahoma Kate. "Even the frivolous bundles of clothes to be seen in the big New York hotels don't worry me very much. I can't feel that they're really selfish and heartless, but I just believe that nobody ever took the time and trouble to explain to them in the right way all that's waiting for them to do in the world."

"When a woman fully realizes that the future of her children is at stake, she will fight to the last gasp. This strike against marriage and motherhood, which physicians and others have wondrously at my advocating, has really been won in a quiet way. Plenty of women who were ready to marry and give up a life of comparative ease for one of grinding poverty, plenty of women who are married defiantly refuse to bring children into the world to fill the hungry maw of our great industrial machinery.

"I want women to have suffrage, because I believe they will bring the tender mother element into the administration of our laws. It is so easy for men to ignore or hold up to trample on the rights of children. Down in Oklahoma, for instance, they have made a regular business of cheating Indian orphans out of their property. Since I went into this matter this last year, I have succeeded in restoring to 2,541 orphans a million dollars in land and $84,000 in cash. Work like that is bound to be taken up by all governments when women vote."

"Let the women can't accomplish everything alone. And money has a tremendously strong hold on the man of today. We women have to fight its influence even in our little souls, whom everybody else teaches that the two aims of life are earning money and having a good time. We must emphasize other ideas, and if the men will not accept them we must say, 'Go your way alone.'"

THOUSANDS OF ILLINOIS
COUPLES MUST REMARRY.

Court Calls Illegal Marriage of Divorced Persons Outside State Within a Year.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—Thousands of Chicago and Illinois couples must remarry if they want their union recognized as legal under a decision by the Illinois Supreme Court.

The court has ruled that when a person violates the Illinois statute prohibiting remarriage within one year after divorce the ceremony is not legal even if performed in another State. Neither has one party any claim upon the estate of the other. The children resulting from the illegal marriages have no standing in law.

Thousands of couples have gone to other States and remarried within less than a year after the Illinois divorce. They have always considered their unions and their children legitimate. This reading of the law is a positive policy of the State for the protection of morals and the good order of society against serious social evils.

Benefited Many Who Had Lung Trouble

Those who suffer from Consumption are generally troubled with night sweats, fever, loss of strength and little or no appetite. Fresh air, good food and the proper care of the body are essential to a recovery, but in many cases something more is needed. Eukman's Alternative is a medicine which has been most successful in stopping night sweats, reducing fever and promoting appetite, and many who have used it declare it saved their lives. Inquire what it did in this case:

"Gentlemen: For four years I was troubled with cough, which gradually became worse. I had night sweats and pains in my chest. I was losing my appetite and had become so thin and weak I could not attend to my household duties. A physician pronounced my case Consumption. Not being satisfied I was examined by the physicians of the Philadelphia Hospital. They also pronounced the disease Consumption, which was proved later by an examination of sputum, as Tuberculosis Bacilli were found. I was ordered to a Consumptive Hospital. My physician would not allow me to go until I had tried Eukman's Alternative. Before I had taken the medicine three weeks I had marked relief, night sweats ceased, pain in the breast relieved, cough became loose and easy, fever left me and I commenced getting well. My health became normal. I am in excellent health now and have been completely cured for ten years. I strongly recommend it."

DR. WILLIAMS TALKS ON THE TRAINING FOR NEWSPAPER WORK

Then Answers Questions at Cooper Union on Methods of Journalism.

Dr. Talcott Williams, Dean of Columbia School of Journalism, talked on "The Training of the Journalist" at Cooper Union last night.

"For six years I was a reporter, starting on The World thirty-nine years ago," said Dr. Williams, "and I have been a newspaper man all my life. Yet the journalist's training is never quite complete."

Illustrating the old method of learning the profession, he told of his practical experience here at Albany, and in Washington, citing as an instance of the knowledge gained that he had learned that no such great political organization as Tammany Hall could exist unless it discharged civic duties otherwise neglected by the majority of citizens.

Dr. Williams said the journalist must have prophetic vision and such devotion to public service that he would rather do newspaper work for nothing than not at all. Then he dwelt on the necessity of writing according to Joseph Pulitzer's cardinal principle of "Accuracy, Terse, Accuracy."

His lecture over, Dr. Williams answered questions. To one regarding business office influence Dr. Williams replied that any big advertiser could certify that it did not exist except on such irresponsible newspapers.

That multimillionaires control all the large dailies was also suggested by a man in the audience. To this Dr. Williams replied that millionaires usually flee from publicity and are the strongest advocates of a bridled press. The answer to the assertion that Lieut. Becker had a press agent who printed half a column of any kind of news he pleased in any newspaper he liked was that "undoubtedly this would be a better world if there were no liars in it."

SLAYER BARRICADED,
SHOOTS TWO OFFICERS,
STILL DEFIES POLICE

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 19.—Police squads besieging the house where Adam Boehler barricaded himself after decapitating his wife last night, has been unable to dislodge the fugitive this forenoon. Boehler was well supplied with ammunition, had declared he would not be taken alive, and the police determined to starve him out unless he tried to escape.

Charles Davis, one of the policemen shot by Boehler early to-day when the officers tried to arrest him, had his wound dressed and returned to his post. Jesse Wooten, another policeman who was shot through the lungs, may recover.

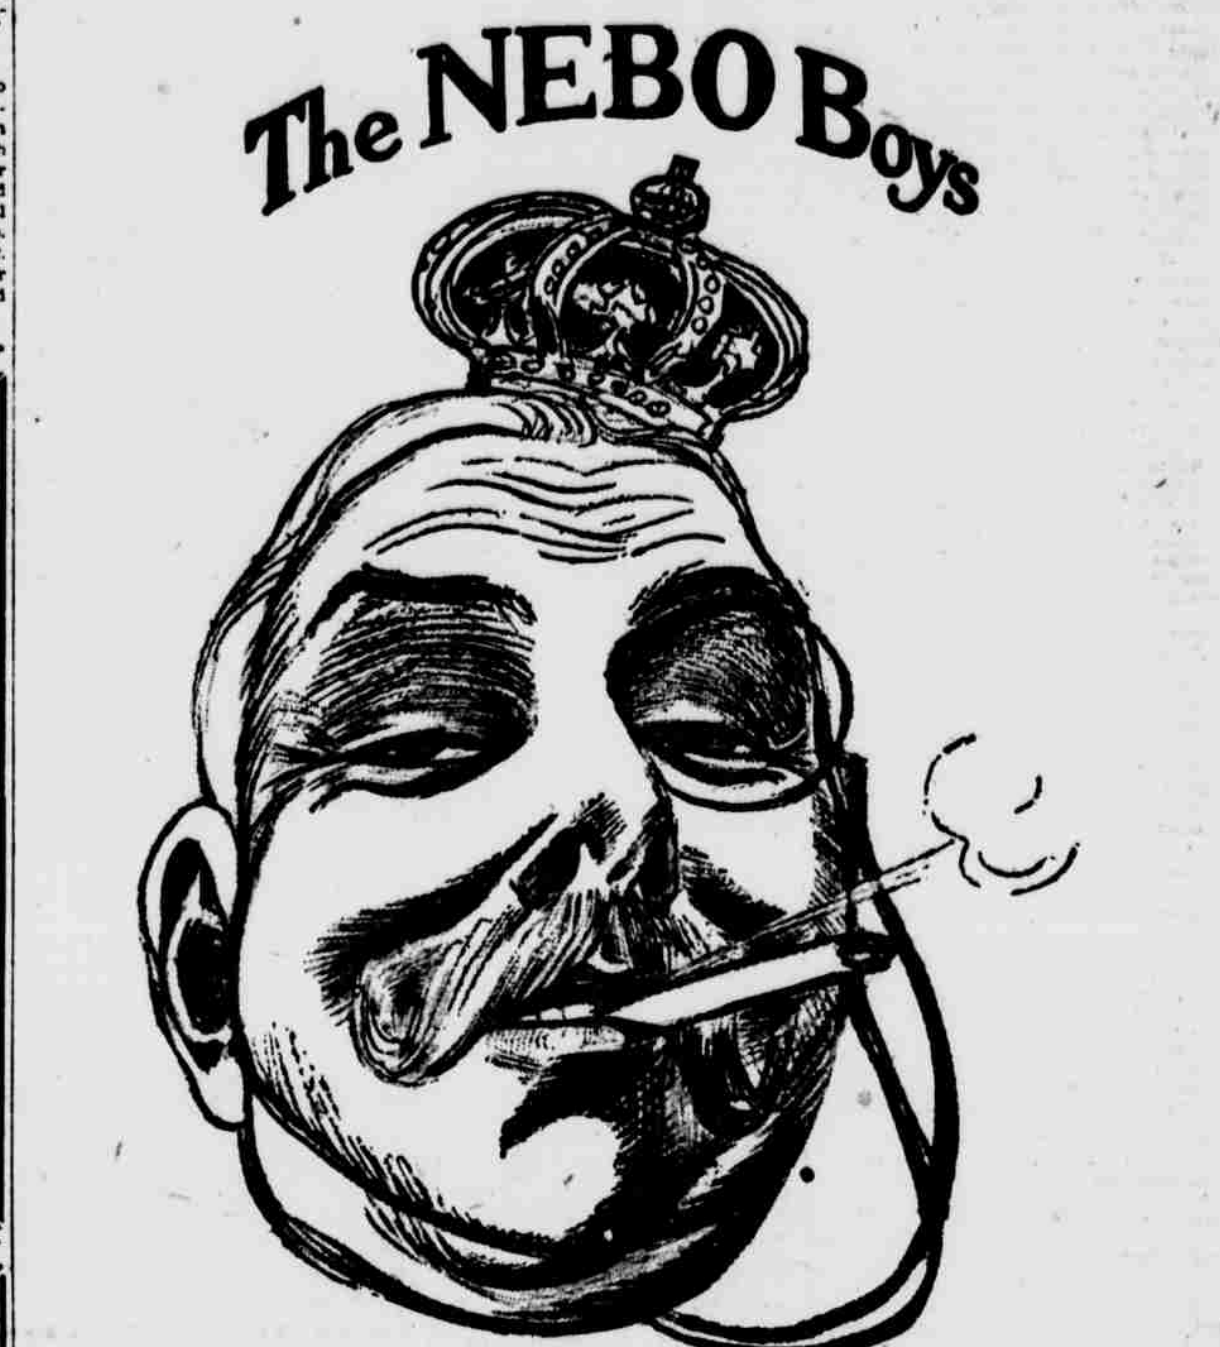

There was no change in the condition of Spaulding Parsons, a drug clerk, shot by mistake by one of the besieging party.

Boehler, who comes from Indiana, killed his wife in the presence of his four-year-old daughter. The child later slipped out the story of the crime when she wandered into a neighbor's home.
